

Contents

Editor's Preface	v
Author's Preface	xi
Abbreviations	xv
PART ONE: THE SOURCE OF REVELATION:
GOD THE FATHER	1
Preliminary Methodological Note	3
A. Revelation as the Self-Disclosure of God	5
I. The Problem of the Concept of Revelation	5
II. Negative Delimitations of the Concept of Revelation	14
1. Over against the Understanding of Revelation as a Supernatural Invasion	14
2. Over against the Understanding of Revelation as an Enhancement of Nature — A Critique of Natural Theology	15
III. The Dialectical Relation between the Self-Disclosure of God and Reception by the Human Self. Revelation and Subjectivity, Word and Faith	21
1. Natural Theology Only in Retrospect of Faith—Against Tillich's Principle of Correlation and Althaus' Doctrine of Primitive Revelation	21
2. Instances of the Dialectic of Natural Knowledge and Revelation—The Transformation of the Words Life, Meaning, and Truth	27
3. Implications for the Relation of Revelation and Faith	34
a. Faith and Word	34
b. Faith and History	41
c. Faith and Experience	51
B. Revelation as a General Pointer to the Question of God. On the Relevance and Validity of Theos in Theology. What Does it Mean to Talk about God?	61
IV. The Problem	61
V. The Modern Crisis in the Concept of God	65
VI. Negative and Positive Aspects of the Idea of God	73
1. The Negative Aspect	73
	vii

2. The Positive Aspect	78	XX. The Historical and Suprahistorical Aspects of Christ's Manifestation	290
a. God and Meaning	79	1. The Universal and Cosmological Aspect	291
b. God and the Good	84	2. The Individual and Historical Aspect	296
3. Results and Evaluation: Theological Statements Regarding the Transcendence of God	94	XXI. The Basic Problem of Expression and the Unavoidability of Paradox	307
VII. The Personality of God	102	XXII. The Question of the Person of Christ	319
1. The Problem of the Concept of Person as a Theological Category	102	XXIII. The Approach to Christology through the Mighty Acts of God	332
2. The Positive and Negative Affinity of the Word Person in Description of God	103	XXIV. The Systematic Principle of Christology: The Doctrine of the Offices	342
VIII. A Polemical Conclusion: Transcendentalism in the Question of God	116	XXV. The Offices of Christ in the Schema of Prophecy and Fulfilment	358
C. Revelation as a Word which Posits History. God's Being within Historical Revelation. Preliminary Note: The Creative and Active Word	124	XXVI. The Prophetic Office	361
IX. The Trinity of God	129	XXVII. The Priestly Office	366
The Problem which Leads to the Doctrine of the Trinity	130	1. The Problem of the Humanity	366
X. The Doctrine of the Trinity as a Defensive Formula: A Safeguard against Speculative Ideas of the Divine Unity and Singularity	137	2. The Form of the Humanity	372
XI. The Aim and Mode of the Trinitarian Statement	158	3. The Depth of the Humanity: the Cross	383
XII. Anthropological Perspectives of the Doctrine of the Trinity	167	XXVIII. The Metaphors of the Atonement within the Priestly Office	392
XIII. The Dogmatic Rank of the Doctrine of the Trinity	170	1. The Cultic Metaphor	392
XIV. The Word of God as Law and Gospel	184	2. The Penal Metaphor—the Vicarious Aspect	398
The Connection with the Problem	184	3. The Political and Military Metaphor and a Homiletical Summary	404
XV. The Distinction between Law and Gospel in its Relevance for the Movement of Salvation History from the Old Testament to the New	199	XXIX. Excursus on the Metaphors of the Atonement: The Virgin Birth and the Descent into Hell	407
XVI. The Distinction between Law and Gospel in its Relevance for the New Being of the Christian	234	1. The Virgin Birth	407
XVII. The Law in its Social Dimension. The Problem of Coercion and Autonomy	243	2. The Descent into Hell	415
PART TWO: THE FORM OF REVELATION: GOD THE SON	259	XXX. The Kingly Office	421
XVIII. Preamble: The Systematic Place and Method of Christology	263	1. Survey of the Problems	421
XIX. The Horizon of Christology: The Relation between Faith and History	274	2. The Resurrection of Christ	423
		a. The Significance of the Resurrection for Faith	424
		b. The Problem of Facticity	426
		c. The Relation between Faith and Historical Knowledge	430
		d. The Ontological Singularity of the Easter Event as Illuminated by the Problem of the Empty Tomb	431
		e. The Rank of the Question of Historical Truth	435
		f. Counter-Criticism of the Vision Hypothesis	438

x The Evangelical Faith

g. Basis of Faith or Concept of Faith?	442
h. Continuity and Discontinuity between the Earthly Jesus and the Risen Christ	447
XXXI. Postscript on Christology and the Witness of the Spirit	453
Indexes	457
1. Names	457
2. Subjects	465
3. Scripture References	470

General Plan of the Third and Final Volume

PART THREE: The Present and Future of Revelation: The Holy Spirit

- A. The Power of Presentation
- B. The Form of Presentation: The Church
- C. The Exclusiveness of Presentation: The Gospel and World Religions
- D. The Culmination of Presentation: The Eschaton