

Contents

---

Preface	vii
1 The Genesis of Doctrine	1
Doctrine and Dogma	8
Doctrine and Theology	10
2 The Nature of Doctrine: A Response to George Lindbeck	14
The Cognitive–Propositional Theory	15
The Experiential–Expressivist Theory	20
The Cultural–Linguistic Theory	26
A Preliminary Evaluation of Lindbeck’s Analysis	32
3 The Nature of Doctrine: Four Theses	35
Doctrine as Social Demarcation	37
Doctrine as Interpretation of Narrative	52
Doctrine as Interpretation of Experience	66
Doctrine as Truth Claim	72
4 On Being Condemned to History	81
The Strangeness of the Past	81
The Concept of Cultural Relativism	86
Theology and the Sociology of Knowledge	90
5 The Authority of the Past in Modern Christian Thought	103
The Renaissance	104
The Reformation	117
The Magisterial Reformation	118
The Radical Reformation	131
The German Enlightenment	132
The Historical Criticism of Dogma	138
The Necessary Truths of Reason	140
The Knowledge of the Past	142
The Historians of Dogma	145

	The Authority of the Past: The Covert Influence of Ideology	152
	The Recollection of the Past: A Theoretical Model	165
6	Tradition: Access to the Identity-Giving Past	172
	The Inevitability of the Past	173
	The Enlightenment Prejudice against Tradition	179
	The Memory of the Past	185
	The Hermeneutical Importance of a Community Tradition	188
	The Future of Doctrine	193
	Conclusion	198
	Abbreviations	201
	Notes	202
	Bibliography	237
	Index	260