

CONTENTS.

CHAPTER I.

INTRODUCTION: THE GENERAL CHARACTER OF THE REFORMATION.

	PAGE.
Four principal events of modern history	1
Long historical preparation of these events	1
Agency of individuals not to be undervalued	2
Theories in respect to the Reformation	2
An astrological hypothesis	2
Theory that it was a quarrel of monastic orders	3
That it was an academical dispute	4
That it was a new phase of the old conflict of Popes and Emperors	4
That it was an insurrection against authority: (advanced by Guizot)	4
That it was a transitional step towards Rationalism	6
The Reformation primarily a religious event	8
Judaizing character of mediæval Christianity: constant reaction of the spiritual element	8
Protestantism positive as well as negative	9
It has an objective factor	9
It practically asserted the right of private judgment	10
It was a part of the general progress of society	10
General characteristics of the entire period	10
Two-fold aspect of the Reformation — religious, and political or secular	11
Chronological limits of the era	12

CHAPTER II.

THE RISE OF THE PAPAL HIERARCHY AND ITS DECLINE THROUGH THE CENTRALIZATION OF NATIONS.

Protestantism rejected priestly authority	13
The relation of sacerdotal authority to Papal supremacy	14

The new Dispensation spiritual, in contrast with the old . . .	14
Absence of a mediatorial priesthood	14
Officers of the primitive Church	15
Functions of a priesthood gradually associated with the ministry	16
Growth of a hierarchy	16
Irenæus and Tertullian make the Church the door of access to Christ (circa 200)	17
Causes of the precedence of the See of Rome	17
Acknowledged in the East, because Rome is the capital; claimed in the West on account of Peter	20
Accession of Constantine (311); Church not merged in the State, and why	20
Power of the Emperors over the Church	21
Decline of the Empire increases the authority of the Roman bishop	21
Leo, the Great (440-461)	21
The Papacy exalted, yet endangered, by the fall of the Western Empire (476)	21
Spread of Arianism and Mohammedanism	22
Fortunate alliance of the Papacy with the Franks (750)	22
Rescue of the Papacy by Pepin and Charlemagne	23
Significance of the coronation of Charlemagne (800)	23
Effect of the fall of his Empire on the Papacy	24
The Pseudo-Isidorian Decretals (circa 850)	24
Enforced by Nicholas I. (858-867)	25
Anarchy in Italy: the period of pornoeracy: intervention of Henry III. (1046)	25
Hildebrand (1073-1085) and his reforming plan: theory of the Papacy and the Empire: their inevitable conflict	26
Advantages of the Papacy in this conflict	27
Victory of the Popes; Henry IV., the Worms Concordat (1122); Alexander III. (1177)	28
Culmination of Papal power; Innocent III. (1198-1216)	29
His theory of the Papal office	29
Rise of the spirit of nationalism; its various manifestations	31
Benefits of the Papacy in the Middle Ages approach of another era	32
National languages and literatures	33
Anti-hierarchical spirit of the vernacular writers	35
The same spirit in the Legists	36
Reaction against the Papacy; Boniface VIII. (1294-1303)	36
Conflict of Boniface with Philip the Fair	37

Declining prestige of the Papacy; the Babylonian captivity (1309-1377)	38
Character of the Papacy at Avignon; Petrarch's testimony	39
Opposition from Germany and England	39
The Monarchists against the Papists	40
Attacks upon Papal usurpations by writers; Marsilius of Padua and William of Occam	41
The Gallican or constitutional theory; the Reforming Councils (1409-1443)	43
Increasing sway of national and secular, in the room of ecclesiastical feelings, in the fifteenth century	44
Consolidation of monarchies; England, France, Spain	44
Secular and worldly character of the Popes	44
Sixtus IV. (1471-84); Innocent VIII. (1484-92); Alexander VI. (1492-1503); Julius II. (1503-13)	45
Character of Leo X. (1513-21); judgment of Sarpi, Pallavicini, Muratori, Guicciardini	46
The importance of the Popes, chiefly political	48
The concessions to them from Princes more apparent than real	48
An illustration in the repeal of the Pragmatic Sanction (1516)	48
Domination of secular and political interests, seen in the contests of Charles V. and Francis I.	49
The development of nationalism and the secularizing of the Papacy, at the beginning of the sixteenth century	50

CHAPTER III.

SPECIAL CAUSES AND OMENS OF AN ECCLESIASTICAL REVOLUTION PRIOR TO THE SIXTEENTH CENTURY.

Mediæval Christianity characterized by legalism	52
Forms of reaction against it: dissent from dogmas; attacks on the usurpations and abuses of the clergy; opposition to the excessive esteem of austerities	53
Consequences of a possible increase of intelligence	53
Two classes of forerunners of the Reformation	53
(1) Anti-sacerdotal sects	54
The Catharists (Albigenses)	55
The Waldenses; their origin (1170)	56
The Franciscan Spirituals; the Fratricelli	57
The Beguines and Beghards	57
What is indicated by the rise of these sects	58

(2) The conservative or Gallican Reformers	59
(3) Radical Reformers; John Wickliffe (1324-1384) and his opinions	59
How he was protected	59
The Lollards	60
John Huss (1373-1415); his predecessors; Matthias of Janow	61
The character and principles of Huss	62
Huss and Wickliffe on the authority of prelates and magistrates	62
John Wessel (1420-89); Luther's opinion of him	63
Savonarola (1452-98)	64
(4) The Mystics; character of Mysticism	65
Mysticism among the Schoolmen; Bernard, Bonaventura	65
John Tauler (1290-1361); the "German Theology"	66
The "Imitation of Christ"	67
(5) The Revival of Learning; begins in Italy, Dante (1265-1321); Petrarch (1304-74); Boccaccio (1313-75)	67
Spread of the literary spirit; consequences to the Church	68
Benefits and faults of Scholasticism; causes of its downfall	69
It had lost its vitality; effect of Nominalism	70
Renewed study of the Fathers and of the Scriptures	71
Sceptical spirit of Humanism in Italy; influence of the classic school on the Church of Italy	72
Semi-pagan tone of politics and ethics; Macchiavelli (1469-1527)	73
Religious tone of Humanism in Germany; Reuchlin (1455-1522)	74
His victory over the Monks	75
Humanism and the Universities; Wittenberg (1502)	76
Humanism in England; Colet, Erasmus, More	76
The "Eutopia"; its liberal ideas on Religion	76
Erasmus (1467-1536) the leader of Humanism	77
His fame and acquirements	78
His "Praise of Folly"	79
His chastisement of ecclesiastical follies and abuses	81
His editions of the Fathers and of the New Testament	81
Diffusion of his writings	82
What may be inferred from their character and popularity	82
Recapitulation; symptoms of the rise of a new order of things	83

CHAPTER IV.

LUTHER AND THE GERMAN REFORMATION TO THE DIET OF AUGSBURG, 1530.

Protestantism congenial to the German mind	85
Luther the hero of the Reformation	87
His birth (1483) and parentage	87
Studies at Erfurt (1501-5); enters a convent (1505)	88
Made a Professor at Wittenberg (1508)	89
His literary and theological attainments	89
His religious experience	89
Sees that justification is by faith	91
Origin of indulgences; the Scholastic doctrine	92
Luther opposes the sale of indulgences by Tetzel (1516)	92
Luther posts his ninety-five Theses (1517); their contents	92
Their effect in Germany	95
Attacks and replies; he meets Cajetan at Augsburg (1518)	96
Accedes to the truce offered by Miltitz (1519)	97
The Leipzig Disputation (1519); Philip Melancthon	97
Melancthon's character; Luther's geniality and humor	98
He asserts that the primacy of the Pope is jure humano	99
Effect of the Leipzig Disputation upon his studies and opinions	99
He appeals to the laity; Address to the Nobles (1520)	100
Writes "the Babylonian Captivity of the Church" (1520)	100
Writes on the "Freedom of a Christian Man" (1520)	101
Is excommunicated; burns the Papal bull (1520)	101
Commotion produced in Germany; he finds political, religious, and literary allies	102
Ulrich von Hutten (1488-1523)	102
Political condition of Germany; weakness of the central government	103
Abortive efforts under Maximilian (1493-1519) to organize the Empire	104
Discontent and disorder; complaints by the knights, the cities, the peasantry	104
The election of Charles V. (1519): consequent alarm in Europe	105
Rivalship of Charles V. and Francis I. (1515-1547); its grounds, the strength of the rivals respectively	106
Character of Charles V.: his conduct in the affair of the Reformation	107

Luther summoned to the Diet of Worms (1521); his journey	108
Appears before the Diet; refuses to recant	110
Placed under the ban of the Empire	111
Alliance of the Emperor with Leo X.; the terms of it	111
Luther at the Wartburg (1521-22)	112
His occupations; labors on the translation of the New Testament	112
Radical movement of Carlstadt: Luther returns to Wittenberg (1522)	113
He restores order; his vast labors	114
The Council of Regency declines to suppress Lutheranism	114
The character of Pope Adrian VI. (1522-23) and Pope Clement VII. (1523-34)	115
The Diet at Nuremberg (1524); remands the subject of the Worms decree to the several princes	115
Union of Catholic princes and bishops; division of the Nation	116
Protestant League of Torgau (1526)	116
Battle of Pavia (1525); confederacy against Charles	116
The Diet of Spires (1526) refuses to enforce the Worms Edict	117
Sack of Rome and triumph of the Emperor (1527)	117
Repressive action of the Diet of Spires (1529); the Protest	118
Opposition of Luther to armed resistance	118
The Diet of Augsburg (1530); situation and spirit of Charles	118
The Augsburg Confession and Apology	119
Decree adverse to the Protestants	119
The courage and fidelity of the Elector John	120
Luther at Coburg (1530); his correspondence	120
His marriage with Catharine von Bora (1525)	123
His motives; effect of his example	123
His controversy with King Henry VIII. (1522)	124
The intemperance of Luther's language, how explained	125
His apologetic letter to Henry VIII. (1525)	126
The position of Erasmus in relation to the Lutheran movement	127
His gradual estrangement from Luther and his cause	129
Merits of the controversy	131
Inability of Humanism to effect a Reform	132
The peasants' war (1525); how far owing to Protestantism	133
Luther supports the princes	134

CHAPTER V.

THE GERMAN REFORMATION TO THE PEACE OF AUGSBURG:
ZWINGLE AND THE SWISS (GERMAN) REFORMATION.

The character of the Swiss; they serve as mercenaries in the armies of France and of the Pope	136
Birth of Zwingle (1484); his native character; his education	137
At Glarus (1506-16) he opposes the system of pensions and of hired service under the French	138
At Einsiedeln (1516-18) preaches salvation by the grace of Christ alone	139
Adopts the principle of the exclusive authority of the Bible	139
Preaches against indulgences; is established at Zurich (1519)	139
His qualities as a man and a preacher	140
Public disputation (1523); the council of the city sustains him	141
His doctrines; a second disputation	141
Zurich becomes a separate Protestant Church (1524)	141
Zwingle's "Commentary on True and False Religion" (1525)	142
His view respecting the salvation of the heathen	142
The Reformation in Basel (1529); Berne (1528); St. Gall (1528); Schaffhausen (1529)	143
The ecclesiastical revolution is also a political one	143
Contrast of Luther and Zwingle; their religious experience	144
Comparative conservatism of Luther	144
Mingling of patriotism and religion in Zwingle	145
Luther led the resistance to the Church of Rome	146
The Eucharistic controversy between the Lutherans and the Swiss	147
History of the doctrine of the Eucharist	147
Three opinions; Luther, Zwingle, Calvin	148
Ground of Luther's vehemence against the Zwinglian doctrine	149
The Conference at Marburg (1529)	152
The result; subsequent revival of the controversy (1543)	153
Catastrophe of the Swiss Reformation; war between the Catholic and Protestant Cantons	154
Death of Zwingle (1531)	155
The Treaty of Peace; Protestantism checked	156
Formation of the League of Smalcald (1531)	156
The Emperor disabled for ten years (1532-42) from carrying out the Augsburg Decree	156
Catholic League (1538)	157

Conferences of the opposing parties (1537-41); Contarini	157
The League of Smalcald, how weakened	158
Maurice of Saxony joins the Emperor (1546)	159
Last days of Luther	159
The relations of Luther and Melancthon to each other	160
Melancthon's funeral address on Luther (1546)	162
Luther's power and influence; remarks of Döllinger	163
The Smalcaldic war (1546-47); defeat of the Protestants at Muhlberg (1547)	164
The Augsburg Interim (1548); Charles's plan of pacification	164
He is disappointed; action of the Council of Trent	164
Union of Paul III. and Francis I. against him (1547)	165
Resistance to the Augsburg Interim in North Germany; the Leipsic Interim (1548)	165
Better prospects of Protestantism	156
Maurice turns against Charles; drives him out of Innsbruck (1552)	167
Treaty of Passau (1552)	167
Peace of Augsburg (1555); the jus reformandi : the Ecclesiastical Reservation	168
Abdication of Charles (1556)	168

CHAPTER VI.

THE REFORMATION IN THE SCANDINAVIAN KINGDOMS, IN THE SLAVONIC NATIONS, AND IN HUNGARY.

Spread of the Reformation; agency of Germans; influence of Wittenberg	170
The Scandinavian kingdoms; the Union of Calmar (1397)	170
Christian II. of Denmark (1513-23) favors Protestantism, then draws back	170
He is deposed and succeeded by Frederic I. (1523-33)	171
Spread of Lutheranism in Denmark in his reign	173
Under Christian III. the Reformation is legalized	173
Constitution of the Danish Protestant Church	173
Democratic movements in Lübeck and other cities, in connection with the Reformation	175
Establishment of Protestantism in Norway (1537)	175
Olaf and Laurence Petersen preach Protestantism in Sweden (1519)	176
Gustavus Vasa (1523-60) favors it	176

It is adopted at the Diet of Westeras (1527)	177
What was done with ecclesiastical property	177
Failure of subsequent efforts to restore Catholicism	177
Effect of the execution of Huss in Bohemia (1415)	178
Hussite movement was both religious and national	178
The demand of the cup for the laity; history of the practice of withholding it	178
The Prague University declares for the Utraquists	179
Division of the Utraquists; the Taborites	180
Ziska (1360-1424) their leader	180
The Articles of Prague, the platform of the Utraquists (1421)	181
Three Crusades fail to subdue them	181
They are heard at the Council of Basel (1433)	182
The Compactata	182
Conflict of Calixtines and Taborites	182
The rise of the Brethren in Unity (circa 1450)	183
Favorable reception of Lutheranism by the Hussites	183
The Utraquists refuse to join Ferdinand in the Smalcaldic war	185
Subsequent persecution of Bohemian Protestants	185
Religious condition of Poland at the time of the Reformation	185
How Protestantism was introduced	185
The spread of the new doctrine in Polish Prussia and in Livonia (1524)	185
Sigismund II. (1548-72) favorable to it	186
Religious dissension among Protestants: spread of Unitarianism	186
John à Lasco (1499-1560)	187
Union of Lutherans, Calvinists, and Brethren, in the Synod of Sandomir (1570)	187
Equality of rights granted to all the Churches	188
The Reformation introduced into Hungary	188
Effect of the civil war (1526) upon its progress	189
Strife between the Calvinists and Lutherans	190

CHAPTER VII.

JOHN CALVIN AND THE GENEVAN REFORMATION.

Calvin belongs to the second generation of Reformers	192
His birth (1509), family, and education	192
Studies at Paris; studies law at Orleans and Bourges	193
His mental power and habits of study	192
Publishes Seneca's treatise on "Clemency" (1532); his motive	194

His conversion (1532)	193
His reserve and love of retirement	196
Obliged to fly from Paris (1533); at Angoulême; at Bearn; returns to Paris	196
Obliged again to fly, on account of placards against the mass (1535)	196
His first theological work; the "Psychopannychia" (1534)	197
At Basel (1535); studies Hebrew; writes the "Institutes"	197
His motive in composing this work	197
His characteristics as a writer and a man	198
His adoption of the Bible as the sole standard of doctrine	199
His conception of the Church and reverence for it	200
His doctrine of predestination	200
Is attached to the doctrine on practical grounds	201
His opinion compared with that of Augustine	202
His ability as a commentator	202
Not an extremist in respect to forms and rites	203
The acerbity of his temper	204
His piety tinged with the Old Testament spirit	205
His homage to law and sense of the exaltation of God	205
Less broad in his sympathies than Luther	206
His greatness of mind and of character	206
Visits the court of the Duchess of Ferrara (1536)	207
Stops at Geneva on his return (1536)	207
Geneva subject to Savoy; achieves its independence (1538)	208
Protestant influences from Berne	208
Expulsion of the Bishop from Geneva and establishment of Protestantism (1535)	209
Farel (1489-1565); his history and character; his preaching at Geneva	209
Discontent there with the new ecclesiastical system	210
State of morals	210
Farel moves Calvin to remain and assist him (1536)	211
Strict regulations of Church discipline	212
Opposition to them	212
The preachers refuse to administer the Sacrament	213
They are banished by the citizens (1538)	213
Calvin resides at Strasburg; attends the German religious Conferences (1539-1541)	213
His opinion of Luther; his relations to Melancthon	214
His marriage	215
Is recalled to Geneva (1541), and why	216

His letter to Sadolet	216
His reluctance to return	217
The Genevan civil and ecclesiastical system	218
The Little Council; the Consistory	219
Vigilant supervision of the people by preachers and elders	219
The Venerable Company	219
Calvin takes part in framing the civil laws	219
How the preachers were chosen	220
Disaffection arises; the Libertines	221
Combination of different classes of Calvin's opponents	221
Severity of the Genevan laws	222
Religious intolerance; its history	223
Practiced in the Middle Ages	224
The Reformers did not advocate toleration	225
Conflicts of Calvin and efforts to intimidate him	225
Bolsec banished (1551) for assailing the doctrine of predestination	226
Expulsion of Castello (1544)	226
Michael Servetus; his history and character	227
His book on the "Errors of the Trinity" (1531)	228
His second book — the "Restoration of Christianity"	228
Tried for heresy before a Roman Catholic Court at Vienne	228
Proof furnished from Geneva	229
He escapes and comes to Geneva (1553)	229
Is arrested and tried	230
Is convicted and burned at the stake	231
Agency of Calvin in the transaction; verdict of Guizot	232
The execution of Servetus generally approved	233
Further efforts of the Libertines; their final overthrow (1555)	234
Calvin's multiplied labors and vast influence	235
His last years; the variety of his employments; his infirmities of body	236
His last illness (1564); his interview with the Council	237
His interview with the preachers	238
Estimate of his character	239
Calvinism lays emphasis on the sovereignty of God	239
Why favorable to civil liberty	239
It does not surrender the government of the Church to the civil authority	239
Its church organization is republican	240
It dwarfs earthly sovereignty by exalting the divine	240
Compared with Romanism in its view of the civil authority	241

CHAPTER VIII.

THE REFORMATION IN FRANCE.

The Sorbonne and Parliament oppose doctrinal innovations	242
Effect of the repeal of the Pragmatic Sanction (1516)	242
Reform emanates from Humanism	242
Francis I. (1515-47); the patron of learning and art	243
Lefèvre (1450-1536), the Father of the Reformation; his studies and writings	243
His mystical turn; his pupil, Briçonnet	244
Hostility of the Sorbonne and of Parliament to Lefèvre and his school	244
Heresy suppressed in Meaux (1525)	245
Margaret, Queen of Navarre (1492-1549); her sympathy with the Mystical School	245
Her writings; she favors the Protestants without joining them	246
Francis I. opposes the Sorbonne; supports his sister	247
Changes his course; engages in persecution	248
Doubtful position of France respecting the Reformation	248
Rome, Renaissance, the Reformation; the three rivals	249
Why Calvinism was disliked	250
Spirit of Loyola and the Catholic Reaction	250
Rabelais (1483-1553)	250
Vacillation of Francis I. and its consequences	251
He persecutes the Protestants (1534); courts the alliance of the Lutheran princes	252
Spread of Protestantism in France in his reign	253
Influence of Geneva and of Calvin	253
Henry II. (1547-59); his hostility to the Reformation	254
Its progress	254
The Calvinists hold a general Synod (1559)	255
Persecution after the treaty of Cateau-Cambresis; death of Henry II. (1559)	255
Heroism of the sufferers	256
How the Huguenots became a political party	256
Catharine de Medici; her relations to Henry and his mistress; and her character	257
Francis II. (1559-60) is controlled by the Guises; their history and character	257
Discordant of the Bourbons and Chatillons	258
Connection of the great nobles with the Calvinists	254

Calvin preaches to them submission; their patience	260
The conspiracy of Amboise (1560)	260
Its consequences; the Edict of Romorantin (1560)	261
Coligny supports the petition of the Protestants for liberty of worship	262
The States General called together at Orleans (1560)	262
Arrest of Condé; Navarre placed under surveillance	262
Plot for the extirpation of Protestantism	262
Frustrated by the death of Francis II. (1560)	263
Catharine de Medici; her virtual guardianship of Charles IX. (1560-74), and regency	263
Influence of L'Hospital	264
Strength of the Protestants	264
Guise, Montmorenci, and St. André form the Triumvirate	264
The Colloquy at Poissy (1561); Beza	265
The Edict of St. Germain (1562) grants a measure of toleration	266
The Massacre of Vassy (1562) begins the civil wars	267
The Huguenots fought in self-defense	268
Siege of Rouen; battle of Dreux (1562); assassination of Guise (1563)	269
The Edict of Amboise (1563); the character of it	269
The Huguenots take up arms; Peace of Longjumeau (1568)	270
Conference at Bayonne (1565)	270
Renewal of the war under Spanish influence; battles of Jarnac and Moncontour (1569)	271
Treaty of St. Germain (1570); reasons that influenced the Court to make peace; fortified towns placed in the hands of the Huguenots	272
Political crisis in Europe; will France make war on Spain?	272
Proposal that Henry of Navarre shall marry Margaret of Valois	273
Coligny comes to Court; his character	273
The origin of the Massacre of St. Bartholomew (1572)	273
Had it been planned earlier?	275
Joy at Madrid and at Rome	277
Effect of the massacre on the surviving Huguenots	277
The party of the Politiques or Liberal Catholics is formed	277
Organization of the League	278
Position of Henry III. (1574-89)	278
Excommunication of Navarre and Condé by Sixtus V. (1585)	279
War of the "Three Henriés" (1586)	279

Assassination of the Guises by order of Henry III. (1588)	279
He joins the army of Henry of Navarre	279
Henry III. is assassinated (1589)	280
Henry IV.; his war with the League; the battle of Ivry (1590)	281
His contest with Alexander of Parma (1592)	280
Abjuration of Henry IV.; its motives (1593); its effect	281
Character of this act	282
Other misfortunes of the Huguenots	283
The administration of Henry IV.; the Edict of Nantes (1598)	283
The Huguenots become an isolated and defensive party	284

CHAPTER IX.

THE REFORMATION IN THE NETHERLANDS.

Prosperity and intelligence of the people of the Netherlands	285
Relation of the Netherlands to the German Empire	286
Influences favorable to Protestantism	286
Persecuting edicts of Charles V. (1521 seq.)	287
Martyrdoms at Brussels (1523); Luther's hymn	287
Continued persecution by Charles V.; number of martyrs	288
Abdication of Charles V. (1555)	289
Fanatical and despotic character of Philip II. (1555-98)	289
His unpopularity in the Netherlands	290
The great nobles; Orange, Egmont	290
Margaret of Parma is made Regent (1559); her character	291
Granvelle; his character	292
Conduct of the government is placed in his hands	292
Philip keeps in the Netherlands Spanish regiments	292
He creates new bishoprics	292
Design of these measures	292
Character of the nobles; William of Orange	293
Philip renews the persecuting Edicts	294
The Inquisition and its cruelties	294
Orange and Egmont complain of Granvelle to the King	295
How far Granvelle was responsible	295
He leaves the country (1564)	296
Speech of William of Orange against the policy of the government	296
Egmont goes to Spain to enlighten the King	297
He is duped by the assurances of Philip	297
Effect of the continued cruelties.	297

The "Compromise" (1566)	297
The Regent allows Protestant preaching outside of the cities	298
Philip promises to mitigate his policy; the proof of his perfidy	298
Iconoclasm (1566)	299
The Regent makes a truce with the Confederacy of Nobles	300
Orange leaves the country	300
Vengeance of Philip; mission of the Duke of Alva (1567)	301
He arrests Egmont and Horn; the "Council of Blood"	302
Alva defeats Louis of Nassau; Egmont and Horn are beheaded (1568)	303
Alva's plan of taxation (1569)	303
The spirit of resistance is awakened	304
The "Sea-beggars;" they capture Briel (1572)	304
Holland and Zealand adopt a free constitution; Orange made Stadtholder (1572)	304
Alva detested by the people; he is recalled (1573)	305
Requesens succeeds him (1573)	305
Growth of a Protestant state under Orange	305
Flanders and Brabant invoke his help; the Pacification of Ghent (1576)	306
Don John succeeds Requesens (1576)	306
Division between the Southern and Northern Provinces	306
Alexander of Parma succeeds Don John (1578)	306
The Utrecht Union formed in the North (1579)	307
Outlawry of William of Orange (1580); his "Apology"	307
His character	308
His assassination (1584)	309
The Catholic Provinces submit to Parma	309
Philip's intention to remove him; death of Parma (1592)	310
Rise of the Dutch Republic; disasters of Philip and of Spain	311
The Anabaptists	311
Prevalence of Calvinism	311
The Calvinists do not adopt the principle of toleration	312
Difference between Protestants and Catholics in respect to intolerance	313
William of Orange advocates religious liberty	313
Controversy on the relation of the Church to the civil authority	314
Germ of the Arminian controversy	315

CHAPTER X.

THE REFORMATION IN ENGLAND AND SCOTLAND.

Lollards numerous at the beginning of the sixteenth century	316
Influence of the Revival of learning	316
Cardinal Wolsey a friend of learning	316
Tyndale (d. 1536) and Frith (d. 1533)	317
The peculiarity of the English Reformation	317
No prominent leaders as on the Continent	318
Henry VIII. seeks a divorce from Clement VII. (1527)	318
Henry reduces the power of the Pope and the clergy in England	319
Revives the statute of "præmunire" (1531)	320
Addressed by the clergy as Head of the English Church	320
Is divorced and marries Anne Boleyn (1532)	320
The act of Supremacy (1534)	321
Abolishing of the monasteries (1536)	321
A Catholic and a Protestant party in the Council and in the Church	321
Cranmer leads the Protestant party; his character	322
Thomas Cromwell; Gardiner	322
The English Bible issued by the King's authority	323
The Ten Articles (1536)	323
The Rebellion of 1536	323
The Catholic party in the ascendancy; the Six Articles (1539)	324
The Fall of Cromwell (1540)	324
Antagonism of the two parties after Henry's death (1547)	325
Protestantism prevails under Edward VI.	325
Cranmer reinforced by theologians from the Continent	326
The Book of Common Prayer (1548, 1552); the Articles of Religion (1552)	326
The progress too rapid for the popular feeling	326
Fall of the Protector Somerset (1551)	326
Revival of the ecclesiastical statutes	327
Reactionary movement under Mary (1553-58)	327
Restoration of the Catholic system; her marriage with Philip II. (1554)	327
Martyrdom of Cranmer, Ridley, and Latimer (1555-56)	328
The character of Cranmer	328
Unpopularity of Mary and its causes	329
Extreme demands of Pope Paul IV.	329

Accession of Elizabeth (1558); her conservative Protestantism	331
Revision of the Articles (1563)	331
Act of Supremacy and Acts of Uniformity (1559); Court of High Commission (1583)	331
Treatment of the Catholics	331
Distinction between the Anglican Church and the Protestant Churches on the Continent	332
Little controversy on Episcopacy in the first age of the Reformation	332
Fraternal relation of the English and the Continental Churches	333
Cranmer asserts the parity of the clergy	333
Testimony of Lord Bacon; position of Hooker (1553-1600)	334
Agreement of the Anglican and Continental Churches on predestination	335
The Augustinian and Calvinistic doctrine compared	337
Influence of Calvin and of his writings in England	338
Anglican divines not rigid predestinarians	338
Anglican doctrine Calvinistic on the Eucharist	340
This doctrine expressed in the Articles	341
The Puritan objections to the vestments	342
Views of Jewel and other Elizabethan bishops	343
The Queen's opposition to changes in the ritual	344
Her enforcement of uniformity	345
Cartwright an advocate of Presbyterianism (1572)	345
The bearing of his principles on the Queen's Supremacy	346
Rise of the Independents; their principles	347
Hooker on Church government and on the relation of Church and State	347
Merits of the controversy of the Anglicans and Puritans	349
Lord Bacon's review of it	349
No iconoclasm in England	350
Connection of the Scottish Reformation with Elizabeth	351
Character of the Scottish nobility; of the commons	352
The clergy ignorant and vicious; their wealth	352
Treatment of Protestantism under the Regent Mary (1554-60)	353
Return of Knox from the Continent (1559)	353
The education of Knox; begins to preach; a captive in France (1547)	354
He resides at Geneva (1553-59); his "Monstrous Regiment of Women"	355
The Covenant of the Lords of the Congregation (1557)	355

The preaching of Knox; iconoclasm	355
Elizabeth sends troops to aid the lords (1560)	356
Death of the Queen-Regent (1560); legal establishment of Protestantism (1560)	356
The ecclesiastical property, how used	357
Return of Mary, Queen of Scots, from France (1561); her character	357
She does not resist Protestantism; grounds of her policy	358
Knox's opposition to the mass in her Chapel (1561)	359
Conference of Knox and the Queen	360
Their debate on the "regimen of women"	361
On the right of subjects to resist their sovereign	362
Knox's opinion of Mary	363
He preaches against the dancing at Holyrood; another conference with Mary	364
The people suppress the mass in the western districts (1563)	364
Knox defends their conduct in a conversation with the Queen	364
Knox arraigned for convening her lieges	366
He describes his examination before her and the Privy Council	367
Knox's public prayer for the Queen and the realm	367
He considers toleration of Catholic worship a sin	368
Mary's marriage with Darnley (1565)	369
It displeases Elizabeth; Mary's hopes centre in Spain and the Guises	369
Murder of Rizzio by Darnley and the jealous nobles (1566)	370
Mary's repugnance to Darnley and attachment to Bothwell	372
Circumstances preceding the murder of Darnley	372
Abduction of the Queen by Bothwell (1567)	374
He is divorced from his wife and marries Mary (1567)	375
She surrenders to the lords at Carberry Hill (1567)	375
The problem of the "casket letters"	376
Mary abdicates in favor of her son; makes Murray regent (1567)	378
Constitution of the Kirk; the Second Book of Discipline (1577-81)	378
Full establishment of the Presbyterian system (1592)	380
Mary escapes from Lochleven (1568); is defeated at Langside (1568); a prisoner in England	380
Hostility of the Catholic Reaction to Elizabeth	381
She sends help to the Netherlands (1585)	382
Execution of Mary (1587)	382
Defeat of the Spanish Armada (1588)	382

Protestantism in Ireland	383
Effect of the Catholic Reaction on the Irish	384
Lord Bacon on the way to treat Ireland	384

CHAPTER XI.

THE REFORMATION IN ITALY AND SPAIN; THE COUNTER-REFORMATION IN THE ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH.
Resistance to Protestantism organized in Italy and Spain	385
Political condition of Italy in its bearing on Protestantism	385
The corruption of the Church understood by Italians	386
Arnold of Brescia (d. 1155)	386
Dante (1265-1321) attacks the temporal power, but not the Catholic dogmas	387
His ideal of the restored Empire	388
How Boccaccio (1313-75) treats the Church and the clergy	388
The spirit of the Renaissance; Laurentius Valla (d. 1465)	389
The service of Humanism and its limits; the academies	390
Diffusion of Lutheran writings in Italy	390
Protestantism in Italy a thing of degrees	391
The Oratory of Divine Love; Contarini	392
The reformed opinions in Ferrara; the Duchess Renée (1527)	392
Protestantism in other cities	393
In Naples; Juan Valdez (circa 1530)	394
Ochino and Peter Martyr	394
Palcario's treatise on the "Benefits of Christ"	395
The Sacramentarian dispute	395
Paul III. (1534-49) favors the Catholic reforming party (1537)	395
Contarini at Ratisbon (1541)	396
Caraffa leads the rigidly orthodox party of reform	396
New orders; the Theatins (1524)	397
Ignatius Loyola (1491-1556) founds the order of the Jesuits (1540)	398
His book of "Spiritual Exercises"	399
The constitution of the Jesuit order	400
The Council of Trent (1545-1563)	400
Its definitions are anti-Protestant	401
Its practical work in the way of reform	402
The Council serves to consolidate the Catholic Church	402
The Inquisition; its history; the Spanish Inquisition	403
The Inquisition in Italy (1543), how organized	404
Flight of Ochino (1542), Peter Martyr (1542), Vergerio (1548)	404

Persecution of Protestants	405
Suppression of Books; the Index Prohibitorius (1557)	405
The Index Expurgatorius	406
Persecution of Evangelical Catholics	406
Extirpation of Protestantism in Italy	406
Introduction of Protestantism into Spain	406
Converts to Protestantism at Seville and Valladolid	407
Reception of the doctrine of Justification by Faith	408
Autos da fé (1559-60)	408
Success of the Inquisition	409
Persecution of the Evangelical Catholics; Carranza (1558-1576)	409
Attitude of the Popes in respect to the Catholic Reaction; Paul IV. (1555-59); Pius IV. (1559-65); Pius V. (1566-72)	411
Sixtus V. excommunicates Henry IV. (1585), and supports the League	412
Change in the intellectual spirit of Italy; Tasso (1544-95); the new schools of painting	412
Carlo Borromeo's private virtues and Christian work (1538-84)	413
The Jesuits as educators	413
They extend their influence in Europe	414
Countries recovered to the Church of Rome	414
Causes of the check of Protestantism; Macaulay's discussion	415
The crystallizing of parties	415
Political arrangements	416
The removal of abuses in the Church of Rome	417
Protestants waste their strength in contests with one another	417
The better organization of the Roman Catholics	417
They use the varieties of talents and character	418
More rooted attachment in Southern Europe to the Church of Rome	418
Discord arises in the Roman Catholic Party; its effect	419

CHAPTER XII.

THE STRUGGLE OF PROTESTANTISM IN THE SEVENTEENTH CENTURY.

Reverses experienced by the Catholic Reaction	421
Principal topics to be considered	421
Failure of Charles V. to subjugate the Protestants	422
Effect of the Peace of Augsburg (1555); Philip II. not supported by Ferdinand I. and Maximilian II.	422
Their successors under the sway of the Jesuits and the Catholic Reaction	423

Origin of the Thirty Years' War (1618-1648)	423
The Evangelical Union (1608); the Catholic League led by Maximilian of Bavaria (1609)	424
The Bohemians revolt against Ferdinand II; give their crown to Frederic V., the Elector Palatine (1619)	424
Bigotry of Ferdinand II., and of the Elector	425
Defeat of the Bohemians; conquest of the Palatinate (1622)	425
Triple alliance for the restoration of the Elector (1625)	426
Failure of the Danish intervention (1626-1629)	426
Wallenstein delivers Ferdinand from subjection to the League	426
The constitution of the armies; the miseries of the war	427
Victories of Wallenstein and of Tilly (1626-29)	427
The Edict of Restitution (1629); the removal of Wallenstein (1630)	427
Intervention of Gustavus Adolphus (1630); his character and motives	428
Victories of Gustavus; Wallenstein reappointed (1632); the battle of Lutzen (1632)	429
Influence of Richelieu (1624-1642); ground of French intervention	429
The death of Wallenstein (1634)	430
Predominance of Richelieu in the conduct of the war (1634)	431
The struggle protracted, and why	431
The Peace of Westphalia (1648)	432
Position of England under the Stuarts	433
Widening gulf between Anglicans and Puritans	433
Hostility of James I. (1603-25) to the Puritans; the Hampton Court Conference (1604)	434
Charles I. (1625-49); his arbitrary system of government	436
Archbishop Laud (1633)	436
The League and Covenant of the Scots (1638)	437
The war between King and Parliament (1642)	437
The Westminster Assembly; parties in it (1642)	437
Establishment of Presbyterianism; how limited	438
Cromwell (1653-58) and the Independents	439
The settlers of New England (1620)	440
Their ecclesiastical system	440
Distinction between the Massachusetts and Plymouth settlers	440
Protestantism in Europe protected by Cromwell	441
Restoration of Charles II. (1660); how effected	441
The Presbyterians are deceived by the King	442
The Savoy Conference (1661)	442
Ejection of the Puritan ministers (1662)	443

Demoralization of the English Court	443
Alliance of Charles II. and Louis XIV. (1670)	443
Real designs of Charles betrayed	444
James II. (1685-88); the Court of High Commission (1686)	444
He endeavors to win the support of the Puritans (1687)	444
The Revolution of 1688	444
The Act of Toleration	445
Failure of the Comprehension Bill	445
Permanent establishment of Presbyterianism in Scotland (1690)	446
Persecution of the Covenanters under James II.	447
Effect of Henry IV.'s death (1589) on the French policy	447
Revolt of the Huguenots (1621); its causes and effect	447
Louis XIII. (1610-1643); the aims of Richelieu (1624-42)	448
His domestic policy; his destruction of the Huguenot power (1628)	449
Louis XIV. (1651-1715); his designs in respect to France and to foreign powers	450
The Assembly of 1682; the Four Propositions of Gallican liberty	450
Adjustment with Innocent XII. (1691-1700); the work of Bossuet	451
Jansenism	451
Declining reputation of the Jesuits; Pascal (1623-62)	452
Suppression of Port Royal 1710; persecution of the Jansenists	452
Persecution of the Huguenots; Revocation of the Edict of Nantes (1685)	453
Its effect on France	454
Wars kindled by the ambition of Louis XIV.	455
William of Orange (1650-1702), his antagonist	456
The result	456
Prostration of the Catholic Reaction	456
Feebleness of the Papacy	457
Effect of the persecution of the Jansenists on the Catholic Church	457
Approach of the era of revolutions	458

CHAPTER XIII.

THE PROTESTANT THEOLOGY.

Two fundamental principles of Protestantism	459
No controversy between the two parties on the Trinity and Atonement	459

Their difference on the doctrine of sin	460
The Protestant doctrine of justification	460
The relation of ethics to religion	461
Protestant doctrine of the exclusive authority of the Scriptures	462
Agreement of the Protestant Churches on this point	462
The two Protestant principles unite in one	463
Roman Catholic doctrine of justification	465
The Protestant doctrine respecting the Church	465
The Roman Catholic doctrine respecting the Church	465
Respecting tradition	466
Respecting the sacraments	467
Sense of the phrase, ex opere operato	467
Modifications of the Roman Catholic view	468
Roman Catholic doctrine of the priesthood	468
Protestants maintain a universal priesthood of believers	469
Protestant view of the number and design of the sacraments	469
Effect of the Protestant view of justification upon various dogmas and practices	470
Protestant controversies on predestination	472
Arminianism and its leaders (1610)	472
Political division between Arminians and Calvinists in Holland	473
The Synod of Dort (1616)	474
Arminian view of original sin and of the atonement	474
General character of the Arminian theologians	475
The Anabaptists	475
The Antitrinitarians of the age of the Reformation	477
Rise of Unitarianism in Italy	477
Faustus Socinus (1539-1604)	478
The Socinian theology	479
Efforts to unite Lutherans and Calvinists	481
Efforts to unite Protestants and Roman Catholics	481
The endeavors of Grotius (1642)	482
His doctrinal position	483
Leibnitz and Bossuet	484
End of the efforts at reunion	486