

---

CONTENTS

PROLOGUE

A Day in the Life of Jill: May 17, 2000

11

PART I

SHAPING TOMORROW TODAY

17

1. The Importance of Anticipating the Future

By being forward-looking in our thinking, we can become effective change agents, rather than affected changed agents.

19

PART II

CHANGES IN BEHAVIOR AND LIFE-STYLE

29

2. Demands that Will Affect Our Values

While the '60s broke through the barriers to change in values, the '90s will bring renewed energy to the process of redefining our basic values and assumptions about life.

31

3. New Ways of Sharing What We Know

We now have only 3 percent of the information that will be available to us by 2010. The new information technologies must be embraced and utilized by the Church.

49

4. The Shape of Our Families and Friends

The changing contours of families and relationships invite the church to become a center for developing friendships and for celebrating marriages that work.

65

5. The Good Times: America at Play

You can take away our jobs, you can close down the churches, you may tear apart our families—but don't ever try to restrict the play time of Americans.

81

6. The Bottom Line: Jobs, Spending and Trade

Forty percent of all the new jobs created by the turn of the century will require higher skill levels than today's average job.

97

PART III

CHANGES IN PATTERNS OF FAITH

109

7. Religious Belief and Involvement

Although Americans generally possess orthodox beliefs, the momentum is against integrating spiritual belief and daily behavior.

111

8. Body Life: The Church and Spirituality

Membership in orthodox Christian churches will decline; people will create their own systems of synthetic faiths, blending the "best" of various religions.

129

PART IV

CHANGES IN ATTITUDES AND PERCEPTIONS

153

9. Attitudes Toward Self and Others

Americans want to be loved, to make a difference, to attain security and comfort—but we have nagging doubts about ever reaching these goals.

155

10. New Stress on Institutions and Processes

Although the intensity of anti-establishment attitudes of the '60s has subsided, vestiges of distrust toward institutions will continue to impact the nation.

169

PART V

WHO AND WHERE AND HOW WELL OFF WE'LL BE

183

11. The Head Count: Population Growth and Distribution

Hot spots for new ministries: among minorities, urban areas, the southern states.

185

12. Redefining "Old": The Aging of America

Formerly geared toward youth, we'll begin to focus more on seniors—the country's fastest-growing age group. Meanwhile, who will reach youth while they're still reachable?

197

13. Books and Bucks:
Education and Wealth

By the year 2000 the cost of a four-year degree from a private college will be more than $100,000. The church can make a difference by stepping into the education gap.

209

PART VI A CHRISTIAN RESPONSE TO CHANGE

221

14. Wanted:
Creative Response to a Changing World

Old approaches won't fit the new challenges. Here are 10 strategies that can help your church make a difference in the 21st century.

223

EPILOGUE
An Alternative Day in the Life of Jill: May 17, 2000

231