

CONTENTS

FOREWORD	v
--------------------	---

BOOK I: THE PERSON OF CHRIST

Chapter

I. INTRODUCTION: THE SOURCE OF THE BELIEF IN CHRIST	17
--	----

The place of Christology within Church dogma (p. 17). The living Church as the source of our belief in Christ (p. 18). Errors in the criticism of liberal theology (p. 23). Belief in Christ and the Apostolic succession (p. 28). Belief in Christ and the motiva credibilitatis (p. 29). The significance of miracles for the belief in Christ (p. 32).

II. THE DEVELOPMENT OF CHURCH DOCTRINE IN THE LIGHT OF THE CHRISTOLOGICAL DIS- PUTES	35
--	----

Monarchianism (p. 35). Christology of Christ's inferiority, and Arianism (p. 37). Subordinationism (p. 38). The Christological question in the narrower sense (p. 44). Docetism (p. 44). The Logos-Sarx Christology of Arius and Apollinaris (p. 47). The Christology of the schools of Antioch and Alexandria (p. 51). Nestorianism (p. 52). Monophysitism (p. 56). Monotheletism and Monenergism (p. 58). Adoptionism (p. 61).

III. THE IMAGE OF CHRIST IN NON-CATHOLIC THE- OLOGY	63
--	----

The image of Christ of the mythological school (p. 64). The image of Christ of the liberal school (p. 65). The image of Christ of the eschatological school (p. 66). The image of Christ of the dialectical school (p. 67). The teaching of the Church and contemporary Christological errors (p. 68).

IV. THE IMAGE OF CHRIST IN THE CANONICAL GOSPELS	73
Jesus' consciousness of his messianic mission (p. 73). Jesus' consciousness of being the Son of God (p. 79). Jesus' affirmation of his lowliness (p. 82).
V. THE IMAGE OF CHRIST IN THE EARLY CHURCH, ACCORDING TO RELIGIOUS HISTORY	87
Testimony of the faith in Christ in the Acts of the Apostles (p. 87). The Son of Man (p. 94). The Lord (p. 95). The belief of the early Christian community (p. 96). The belief in God the Saviour as a creative power (p. 104). The θεῖοι ἀνθρώποι (p. 108).
VI. THE APPROACH TO CHRIST OF RELIGIOUS PSYCHOLOGY	115
VII. CHRIST'S CONSCIOUSNESS OF BEING THE MESSIAS	120
The prophetic and late Judaic idea of the Messiah (p. 120). Jesus' consciousness of being the Messiah (p. 121). Jesus' command that the Apostles be silent (p. 123). The content of Jesus' consciousness of being the Messiah (p. 126).
VIII. CHRIST'S CONSCIOUSNESS OF BEING THE SON OF MAN	130
The literal meaning of the phrase "Son of Man" (p. 130). The Son of Man in Daniel (p. 131). The term "the Son of Man" in Jesus' proclamation (p. 133). The Son of Man as a transitional concept (p. 138).
IX. CHRIST'S CONSCIOUSNESS OF BEING THE SON OF GOD	143
"Son of God" in the Old Testament (p. 143). The "Son of God" in the Gospels (p. 149). "Son of God" as Jesus' own designation of himself (p. 151). Jesus' consciousness of being the "Son" (p. 153). "Son of Man" and "Son" (p. 161). Jesus' consciousness of being the Son as a fundamental motive in his life (p. 162). The fulfilment in the resurrection of the disciples' belief in Christ (p. 166).
X. PAUL'S INTERPRETATION OF CHRIST'S SELF-CONSCIOUSNESS	170
The vision of Christ at Damascus (p. 170). Religious history's attempts at an explanation (p. 173). His-

torical traits in Paul's figure of Christ (p. 179). The significance of Paul's experience before Damascus for his image of Christ (p. 183). Paul's proclamation and the first Apostles (p. 185). The theological content of Paul's faith in Christ, Christ's divinity according to Paul (p. 186). Christ the Kyrios (p. 189). The Christological speculation of St. Paul (p. 190).
XI. JOHN'S INTERPRETATION OF CHRIST'S SELF-CONSCIOUSNESS	196
The characteristics of the fourth Gospel (p. 196). John and Paul (p. 197). The Christology of St. John (p. 202).
XII. THE INTERPRETATION OF CHRIST'S SELF-CONSCIOUSNESS BY THE EARLY FATHERS AND THE SCHOLASTICS	207
The Apostolic Fathers (p. 207). The Apologists (p. 209). Later Theologians (p. 212). Leontius and Boethius (p. 214).
XIII. THE INTERPRETATION OF CHRIST'S SELF-CONSCIOUSNESS IN LATE SCHOLASTIC AND POST-TRIDENTINE THEOLOGY	218
Assumptionism (p. 218). The Habitus Theory (p. 219). The Subsistence Theory (p. 220). The interpretation of Jesus' self-consciousness by post-Tridentine theology (p. 221). Clarifications in terminology (p. 222). The solution of the Thomist school (p. 224). The solution of Duns Scotus (p. 226). The Scotist and Thomist doctrines (p. 228). The solution of the Molinist school (p. 230). The solution of Suárez (p. 231). Psychological understanding of the mystery of the incarnation (p. 233).
XIV. THE HYPOSTATIC UNION AND THE DIVINE NATURE OF CHRIST	235
The incarnation of the second divine person (p. 235). The grounds for the incarnation of the Son (p. 237). The peculiar significance of the incarnation (p. 238).
XV. THE HYPOSTATIC UNION AND THE HUMAN NATURE OF CHRIST	240
The integrity of Christ's human nature (p. 240). Philosophical objections to Monophysitism (p. 241). The duality of Christ's will and his exercise of will (p. 243). The freedom of Christ's human will (p. 246). Christ's incapability of sin (p. 248). Jesus' free- dom in face of his suffering (p. 251). The beginning and the duration of the hypostatic union (p. 255). The supernatural conception and the birth of Jesus according to Matthew and Luke (p. 256). The uninterrupted duration of the hypostatic union (p. 259). Grace as the ultimate cause of the hypostatic union (p. 260).

XVI. CIRCUMINCESSION AND THE "COMMUNICATIO IDIOMATUM" 265

Trinitarian and Christological Circumincision (p. 265). The communicatio idiomatum (p. 268).

XVII. THE ADORATION DUE TO CHRIST'S HUMANITY . 271

The adoration due to Jesus Christ the God-man (p. 271). The adoration of Christ's humanity in the hypostatic union (p. 273). The dogmatic foundation for the worship of the Sacred Heart (p. 274).

XVIII. THE ETHICAL PERFECTION OF CHRIST'S HUMANITY 277

Jesus' perfect sinlessness (p. 277). Objections to Jesus' moral perfection (p. 280). The positive sanctity of Jesus (p. 288). The Grace of Christ as gratia capitis (p. 293).

XIX. THE INTELLECTUAL PERFECTION OF CHRIST'S HUMANITY 296

Jesus' natural knowledge (p. 297). The co-operation of natural and supernatural modes of perception (p. 299). The scientia visionis of Christ (p. 302). The limits of the visio beatifica (p. 305). The objects of the visio beatifica (p. 306). Jesus' knowledge of the day of the Last Judgement (p. 307). Jesus' expectation of the end (p. 313).

BOOK II: THE WORK OF CHRIST

XX. REDEMPTION FROM ERROR AND SIN THROUGH CHRIST 325

The redemption of human thought (p. 325). Jesus' unique way of teaching (p. 327). The newness in Jesus' message (p. 329). The redemption of human will (p. 331).

XXI. THE INCARNATION AS THE BASIS OF OUR REDEMPTION 335

Original sin and redemption (p. 335). The redemptive function of Christ's theandric being (p. 337).

XXII. CHRIST'S DEATH FOR THE SALVATION OF MANKIND 343

Biblical criticism and its denial of Christ's death for our salvation (p. 343). Christ's own statements about his death (p. 344). Jesus' death for the salvation of mankind (p. 350). Christ's proclamation of salvation apart from his death (p. 356).

XXIII. THE APOSTLES' TEACHING CONCERNING CHRIST'S DEATH FOR THE SALVATION OF MANKIND 358

St. Paul's theology of the Cross (p. 358). The soteriology of the other Apostles (p. 364).

XXIV. THE CHURCH'S DOCTRINE OF REDEMPTION . . 367

Dogmatic decisions of the Extraordinary Office (p. 367). Soteriology in the tradition of the Church (p. 369). The Apostolic Fathers (p. 369). The doctrine of recapitulation (p. 369). The doctrine of restoration (p. 370). The doctrine of debt and satisfaction (p. 372). The doctrine of acceptance (p. 373). Jesus' death as a mysterium tremendum et fascinosum (p. 374). The redemption and moral responsibility (p. 376).

XXV. THE REIGN OF THE REDEEMER 381

Christ's kingdom in his Church (p. 381). Christ's descent into hell (p. 382). Christ's resurrection (p. 388). Denials of the resurrection (p. 388). Historical evidence for the resurrection (p. 391). The phenomenon of the resurrection and the faith of the disciples (p. 397). The religious significance of the resurrection (p. 400). The ascension and the reign of Christ (p. 402).

INDEX OF PERSONS 405