ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Allow me to express my sincere gratitude to the people who have made this book possible.

Fifteen people have contributed chapters to this book. I believe that the cumulative efforts of this team have demonstrated the meaning of synergy. My thanks goes to each man who shares his knowledge, wisdom, experience, time and heart with us through his contribution to this book.

My friends at Regal Books have been supportive partners in ministry for many years. I count them as friends, colleagues in ministry and respected professionals in publishing. They deserve our appreciation for sharing the vision for this book and exhibiting great patience in waiting for it to come together.

My family probably makes the greatest sacrifice of all each time I create a book. My tendency is to devote myself fully to completing a book project, emerging from my room for meals and to tuck the girls in at night. My wife, Nancy, becomes the true leader of the family in my absence during such periods of literary hibernation. My daughters, Samantha and Corban, probably wonder what happens to Daddy during these periods.

Although I tried to keep our family time sacred during the days when I worked on this book, I know all three girls gave up some of the time and interaction that we cherish. Nancy, in particular, worked hard to protect my time and facilitate a reasonable level of uninterrupted concentration. In the equation of eternal value, I pray that the trade-offs made during this project are justifiable before God. I love Nancy, Samantha and Corban and pray that this book will help to raise up the kind of leaders who will enhance their lives.

In the final analysis, however, this is a vain exercise in chasing the wind if it does not produce that which brings greater glory and honor
