

Contents

Introduction: What this book is about	7
Part 1: Church growth between spiritualism and institutionalism	13
1. The starting point of natural church development: Bipolar ecclesiology	14
2. Danger to the right: The institutionalistic misconception	24
3. Danger to the left: The spiritualistic misconception	32
4. The fight between spiritualism and institutionalism	39
5. The root of the misconceptions: The impersonal God	49
6. Functionality as a theological criterion?	65
7. The interdenominational approach	75
8. Three Reformations	82
Part 2: The theological paradigm behind natural church development	97
Diagram of the bipolar paradigm	98
A. Christian faith	101
1. What is truth? The conflict about correct doctrine	103

2. Christian faith and fundamentalism: The conflict about Scripture	112
3. Between legalism and "cheap grace": The conflict about law and liberty	126

B. Christian fellowship 136

1. "The ritual makes the Christian": The conflict about baptism and communion	138
2. Between supra-historical and anti-historical tendencies: The conflict about tradition and change	151
3. Spiritual unity or monopolism? The conflict about church planting and cooperation	161

C. Christian service 173

1. "The priesthood of all believers": The conflict about gifts and office	175
2. The dream of the Christian state: The conflict about Christians in politics	189
3. "Make them come in": The conflict about evangelism and conversion	199

Part 3: The biotic approach to church growth 213

1. The new paradigm	214
2. Natural church development	233
3. Can we "make" the church grow?	252
4. Thriving in the third millennium	264

Bibliography	273
--------------	-----

Index	278
-------	-----